Jimmy Buffett fans will gather for music at Hangout, Lulu's & other island bistros

As Gulf Shores and the surrounding Alabama Gulf Coast communities work to recover from Hurricane Isaias and the cancellation of the Annual National Shrimp Festival, another major event is preparing to bring visitors, entertainment, and much-needed economic activity to the area.

The annual gathering celebrates the music, lifestyle, and charitable spirit inspired by Jimmy Buffett. With Parrot Heads traveling from across the country, the event will help support area hotels, restaurants, bars, shops, and other businesses that depend on visitors to the Alabama Gulf Coast.

Our hearts go out to everyone affected by Hurricane

Now in its 34th year, Meeting of the Minds has become a signature gathering for the nationwide Parrot Head community. The convention brings together music lovers, charitable organizations, and friends who share Jimmy Buffett's appreciation for coastal living, friendship, and giving back.

Beyond the music, attendees participate in charitable fundraising, volunteer activities, and community outreach initiatives, continuing the organization's long standing motto: "Party with a Purpose."

Parrot Heads in Paradise is a nationwide nonprofit or-

Gulf Shores has welcomed our Parrot Head family with open arms. Now it's our turn to show Gulf Shores some love. We encourage everyone attending Meeting of the Minds to get out into the community, eat at local restaurants, shop at local businesses, and support the people who make this such a special destination."

With daily entertainment, special performances, and a variety of activities, the event offers opportunities for both registered attendees and the general public to participate.

As Gulf Shores continues its recovery, Parrot Heads are preparing to arrive with a message of friendship, optimism, and support.

The music will play, the visitors will come, and the Parrot Head community will do what it does best: Party with a Purpose.
